management—(B.A, M.A or Ph.D) under a non-traditional approach that does not require you travelling abroad or taking time off to sit for examination. You only need to answer 1 to 20 questions contained in a questionnaire that will be emailed to you once you register for this programme. Your answer for each question MUST NOT be below 500 words and maximum between 500-550 words. The quality or standard of the response that you provide for each question (Bullet point expression will not be accepted in such a write up) will be judged by qualified academic evaluators and the outcome indicates which category of the degree certification your answers have earned. For example, you could be notified that the assessment of the answers you provided has produced the outcome of Bachelors of art in credit management or Masters of Art in credit management, or Doctorate (Ph.D.) in credit management. You will then be required to send necessary details about your past/current credentials and eventually pay up the prescribed programme fees for the qualification.

Upon submission of your answers to the twenty questions each of which MUST be five hundred to five hundred and fifty words, you will be required to formally conscript the write-up to an academic project or thesis/dissertation with the assistance of your assigned supervisor and send three (3) copies of same to LPCMC in an easily accessible CD or through our affiliate in your country.

The conscription of the provisions to project writing style recognizes each question that you have answered as your sub-topic, and then followed by the outcome which is the answer that you have provided.

For the purpose of clarity, the London Postgraduate Credit Management College (LPCMC), UK working in partnership with its affiliate University will subject your thesis or project/dissertation to critical academic content assessment, transcript extraction and grade measurement with a view to properly domiciling your academic records both in UK with LPCMC and the university. The University which is recognized globally will warehouse your academic records and award you the degree in credit management.

Candidate must wait at least a maximum period of 90 days for the process to complete and at the end of which candidate will receive certification together with academic transcript, provided the candidate has completed payment of all programme fees.

Following that, candidate will be required to provide the following:

- A) Payment for the related programme fee which your answer has been assessed as qualified. The payment can be made in one or three equal installments.
- B) Candidate's copy of international travelling passport data page

- C) Candidate's copy of most recent curriculum vitae together with copies of current academic and professional certificates.
- D) Most recent passport photos of the candidate.

For African registration, both LPCMC and its partner University have authorized Nigeria's Postgraduate School of Credit and Financial Management (PSCFM) to register and receive from student payment of fees for this programme in Nigeria and other African countries.

As this programme is profoundly novel, essentially to reach out to highly busy credit professionals and business leaders and their executives who because of tight responsibility schedules leaves them with no opportunity to engage in the traditional work and learn executive programmes, we affirm in all sincerity that this programme is the way to go.
